State officials warn:

Rejection of regional sewerage will bring penalties to Hancock

By RICH ADAMS

A Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission engineer warned city and county officials here Thursday that failure to accept a proposed plan for coastal wastewater treatment may cause a cutoff of federal funds to the county and subject the county to fines up to $500,000 a day.

Caleb Dana, Gulf Coast project engineer for the 201-208 wastewater treatment plan, said funds for future planning may be cancelled if the present proposal, Plan 21, is not accepted.

"In my opinion, if the most cost-effective EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) plan has not been accepted two times under the 201-208 plan, you may not receive any federal funds to do further planning," Dana said at a public hearing in the Hancock County Courthouse Thursday night.

Dana also made it clear if Hancock County did not enter a contract to join the Coastwide wastewater treatment plan, Waveland, Bay St. Louis, and the unincorporated areas of the county will be subject to fines up to $500,000 a day for not complying with the clean air and water act of 1972.

The lengthy meeting was attended by government officials from Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and Hancock County. Phil Barnes, financial consultant from Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company of Austin, Texas, explained the financial obligations of municipalities and the county in the coastwide management plan.

He said participation in the management plan is not mandatory, adding Waveland had the best option not to join because that city has a newer wastewater treatment plant.

"I think it is unfair to make participation mandatory. I will resist the authority to mandate participation," Barnes said.

"I believe in options, and right now, Waveland has one of the best options not to join the region," he continued.

"It is not much of an option, but Waveland does have more of an option than most cities," he emphasized.

Barnes produced rough figures which his office had compiled that day to show user fees for the plan.

He said user costs for the regional wastewater plant will be approximately $5.65 per household a month.

Waveland City Council Attorney Lucien Gex examined the figures, and contested a $17.79 fee estimated for Waveland compared to $10.03 for Bay St. Louis and $10.73 for Clermont Harbor.

"Waveland has a new treatment plant and a new sewer system, yet we pay more," Gex asked.

"Clermont Harbor does not have one inch of sewer pipe and Bay St. Louis' system is 15-years-old," he said.

"Waveland paid through the nose for capital improvement of the plant, and now you tell us we will have to pay more for services than one entity without any sewage lines and another with a 15-year-old system," he continued.

"We already pumped $4 million into the plant and charge $6.75 a household. This is going to be hard to sell and causes me a great deal of concern," the city attorney added.

Waveland Mayor John Longo, a member of the interim regional wastewater commission, said he cannot see joining the system for an extra $10 more per household.

"I firmly believe we can treat all sewage for a few dollars more. I cannot see joining the regional plan for an extra $10 to $15," Longo said.

"We want people in Hancock County to understand we want to solve the pollution problem in the most cost-effective manner," he added.

Barnes said he thinks his office may have made an error in the figures.

"I believe an error has been made. This is not reasonable," Barnes explained.

The financial consultant then suggested his firm be allowed to take another look at the figures and find any mistakes.

Mayor Longo, saying he was speaking as a citizen of Hancock County, objected to the plan.

"I don't see one good selling point for the public. I believe most citizens will oppose the plan, and as a citizen of

Sheriff ends speculation

Ladner, Travirca vie for supervisor

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The qualifying of Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner Jr. for the office of Supervisor in District Five at mid-day Friday ended the guessing about which position the 27-year veteran office-holder might seek.

Ladner will try to unseat James N. (Jimmy) Travirca, vice-president of the Board of Supervisors, who will be seeking his third term.

Edward D. (Eddie) Murtagh, assessor-tax collector; Henry Otis, circuit clerk are left unopposed in the August primary election.

Murtagh was elected to serve the unexpired term of veteran assessor-collector George Heitzman who resigned in 1978.

Otis will be seeking his second full term having been elected to fill the unexpired term of his late father, Lamar Otis.

Justice Court Judges Lee B. Klein, District One; and Horatio Frierson Jr., District Two were also spared opposition in the primary.

Klein seeks his third term and Frierson his second term.

The last person to qualify Friday with Circuit Clerk Henry Otis was Clinton (Sonny) Ladner, running for the supervisor's post in District Two.

Ladner will try to unseat incumbent A.A. (Dolph) Kellar, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, who will be seeking his sixth term.

Those two will also face opposition from Herlon K. Lupton.

State Representative J.P. Compretta is unopposed for the Democratic nomination in August, but will face Republican Karl Goss who is also unopposed in August for the Republican nomination.

The November election will probably bring out independent candidates who have until September 7 to qualify against the Democratic and Republican

Subdivision eyes Waveland merger

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Annexing the Mel Ott Subdivision to the City of Waveland was discussed among three subdivision residents and the Waveland Board of Aldermen at its meeting Tuesday night.

The residents, Charles Ladner and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Musser, explained they were speaking as individuals and were not acting as spokespersons for the approximate 20-family subdivision during their conversation with the Board.

The subdivision is located to the rear of Stuckey's on US-90 and extends north to Longfellow Road in Hancock County.

Ladner explained receiving water to households was the families most urgent need, because there had been speculation water might be cut-off at the subdivision at the end of this year.

"In the event we petition," Ladner questioned, "what would it cost to deliver water to our area?"

"Extending the water system to your area would be free if you were Waveland residents," Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. replied.

Ladner said residents at Mel Ott were erroneously told extending the water system to the subdivision would cost approximately $1000 per household even if they were inside city limits.

If annexed the residents would have to pay Waveland taxes, however.

Longo said to initiate annexation residents within the area would first have to sign a petition requesting to become a part of Waveland.

The mayor added the law is not clear on the number of residents necessary to request annexation.

"Annexation would provide street lights; give the subdivision area a Class A fire rating which in turn would bring a 50 percent drop in the cost of fire insurance; provide police and fire protection and garbage collection," said the mayor in citing the advantages of annexation.

Aldermen suggested Waveland may be able to acquire a grant to provide sewerage and water to the subdivision. "The cost of providing a sewerage system to that area would be approximately $1 million," Longo surmised.

Lander said "The value of our property would also increase tremendously if we annexed."

Alderman Barbara Rappold said the annexation process would take from six months to a year before completion.

In other business, St. Stanislaus students Carlos Lozano and Kevin Atwell asked the Board to consider financing a beach patrol that would serve as life guards along the beach in front of Bucanner Park and Gulfside Methodist Assembly, an area where some 24 persons have drowned in recent years.

The students explained the municipality and, or county would need to purchase life-saving equipment and finance life guard's salaries.

Lozano said, probably two life guards other than he and Atwell would be needed to implement the plan.

The protection would be provided on weekends, they said.

They said the death last Sunday of a Sliedell man, the latest drowning in a dangerous hole near Bucanner Park motivated them to create the life guard proposal.

Both Lozano and Atwell are accredited in advanced life saving.

Longo and Aldermen Jack Toomey said, "The drownings here are getting to be a terrible thing."

The Board said the students plan appears to be a good idea and the Board will investigate funding of the project.

Before leaving Longo emphasized, "The first thing Brother Albert taught us in advanced life saving was that prevention is 50 percent of saving lives."

Penalties...

Barnes then pointed out some "advantages" of the regional system.

He said the regional plan will:

—Provide wholesale sewage treatment to cities;

—Base financing on long-term contracts and stand-by taxes;

—Guarantee adequate future treatment services;

—Relieve Waveland from responsibility of operation and maintenance of the collection system as the city will not own nor owe debts on the plant;

—Establish user charges and set a monthly payment from parochial governments to be paid directly to the commission.

—Allow cities to continue service fee collection.

"The key difference is you will not have the plant to operate or maintain," Barnes explained.

Waveland Alderman Louis Smolensky asked if workers presently employed at local plants will retain their jobs or be replaced by the commission.

"That is up to the regional management. If you were to sell your business, you would not be able to contract your employees to remain there," Barnes replied.

Frank Nicholls, a consulting engineer, said in all probability some of the present workers will lose their jobs.

"Good people are in big demand at slightly higher salaries, and most employees will probably come out on top," Nicholls said.

Officials from both cities and the county said they feel Hancock County will lack representation on the commission, adding the predominating influence will come from Biloxi and Gulfport.

Both Dana and Barnes said the commission will operate in a "business-like manner," trying to keep politics from interfering with operation of the plants.

"I believe the representation thing is overblown. You have a history of thinking of the Coast as Waveland, Bay St. Louis, Biloxi, Pascagoula, all separate, not combined," Barnes said.

"This is common and a hard line of thinking to break from," he added.

Barnes then explained the functions and structure of the new regional commission, referring to it as "the new bureaucracy."

"This will be run as business-like as possible, not as political jobs," Barnes explained.

He said the regional plan will create 100 to 105 jobs, and listed a number of options for appointing the commission.

Possible criteria for selection of commission members include:

—Appointment by the governor;

—Residency requirement elections;

—Election by single-member districts;

—Gubernatorial appointment from nominations by local elected officials and legislature;

—Election at large;

—Appointment by local officials; and —Combination of appointments by local officials and the governor.

homes could decline by $504. Additionally for Mississippians, anywhere between 242 to 1,576 new jobs could open up, the Farm Bureau leader said.

The Davis-Bacon Act regulates wages paid on federally funded construction projects. It was passed in 1931 but repeal measures now are under consideration in both the Senate and the House.

Davis-Bacon minimum wages, decreed by the Secretary of Labor, are often much higher than prevailing wages in local communities.

PREPARING FOR OPENING DAY - Chad Johnson, 2; David Anselmo, 2; and Jason Johnson, 1, are assisted by Debbie Anselmo in preparing the St. Clare Catholic Church swimming pool in Waveland for opening day Tuesday of Therapy Swimming Program, Inc., a program conceived, developed and to be conducted by Mrs. Anselmo to benefit handicapped children and youth between the ages of 1 and 20 years. For information on the program, contact Mrs. Anselmo at 467-3509.

Tuesday magic opens library reading program

By PRIMA WUSNACK
Library Director

From the mysterious world of magic to the realm of the great outdoors, the "Summer of Champions" Reading Program at the City-County Library will whisk children on a fun-filled flight through bookland.

The main purpose of the national program is to get children to read throughout the summer, said June Dearman, children's librarian and coordinator of the reading program.

"This keeps their reading skills from getting rusty while they are out of school and even help improve those skills," she continued.

More than 200 children attended the official registration for the program Thursday, which kicked off with a bike parade followed by a film and refreshments.

Mayor Larry Bennett was on hand and expressed his gratitude for such a worthwhile program and thanked the children for their enthusiastic participation.

Children of pre-school age and up can take part in the reading program, Dearman explained, and can come in and register at either the City-County Library, the Kiln Library or the Waveland Library for the next three weeks.

Professional magician Ramon Ramirez will awe children with feats of illusion and sleight of hand at a Magic Workshop being held Tuesday as the first of the bi-weekly events. The show begins at 2:30 p.m. featuring Ramon, Cyril Leboeuf and Keldini (Kelly Ladner), with DeArmando as the master of ceremonies.

A movie, "Duel of the Wizards," will be shown to wind up the event.

It is not necessary to read a large number of books to participate in the program, said Dearman.

Each child will read as many as he feels he can, and those reaching their reading goal will receive certificates at the final awards ceremony on July 26.

Children with physical handicaps which prevent them from reading or holding a book can join the reading program and receive free "talking books" on either a record or cassette and a "talking-book-machinette" to play them.

Anyone needing further information or interested in volunteering a few hours a week for the reading program should call June Dearman at the City-County Library at 467-5282.

Time to get on the stick

We do not care who, which group, political affiliation, or part of the county they live in, the time is running out on playing around with the school bond issue.

The dillydallying continues as the deadline on loss of accreditation for Hancock County North Central gets closer each day.

We are primarily interested in one thing, the proper education of our children, as we have mentioned on so many previous occasions.

We do not blame any one official, but wonder if any of our elected officials are interested in the welfare of our children, or are they only interested in playing politics.

It is a crying shame when children seem to be exploited by politicians for their gain.

Why the delay on the bond issue? If whoever bears the responsibility for gathering information for a bond issue proposal doesn't know what is to be done to collect that information, why can't help be obtained from someone who does?

There should be someone who knows the correct limitations on the amount the Hancock County School System can seek in a bond issue for school improvements.

Time is wasting; the deadline is getting nearer; our children's future is in the hands of our political leaders; forget playing politics and get together on a building program necessary for the continuation of accreditation.

After the figures are gathered, set an election day for the bond issue, and then all political leaders work for the passage of school improvements.

This time all political leaders should fight for the passage of the bond issue. The two previous bond issues were openly fought tooth and nail by some political leaders, others fought it under cover and a few worked for the passage openly.

The next bond issue will need the support of all political leaders, that is of course, if an amount for a bond issue can ever be decided.

We know many concerned parents thinking about the welfare of their children worked day and night for the last two bond issues and we are told they will continue to do so for the next one.

Let's get the bond issue set and pass it!

"Working tomorrow's blueprint today"

June 4, 1979

Congratulations go to the seniors chosen for the Outstanding Student Awards - Gail Pressman, educational chairman, said the following students received the Chamber's annual awards: Melinda Anne Dodson, Bay Senior High; Vickie Lennette Necaise, Hancock North Central; Laurie Koch, Our Lady's Academy; Mary Ann Golmon, Coast Episcopal High; Frederick Lionel Keel, St. Stanislaus.

King Neptune Nominee - The nominee from the Chamber to vie for the title of King Neptune in the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo is Sam Whitfield. President Dick Thomas said, "I am proud to be able to submit Mr. Whitfield as our nominee. He is an outstanding man in our community." The rodeo will be held July 4-8, in Gulfport.

A Certificate of Appreciation was presented to Mrs. Sylvia Cure, Bayou Caddy Fisheries, for "untiring efforts to save the life of another human being." Mrs. Cure saved a young boy's life when the youth fell into the water at Bayou Caddy. President Dick Thomas commended Mrs. Cure at the May board meeting for her concern and quickness that resulted in preventing a near tragedy.

Office Day - The Hancock County Vo-Tech Center sponsored a program called Office Day again this year. We were proud to have been able to participate by having the help of a student, Brenda Burke, work in our office on May 3. Brenda received on-the-job experience and we received a lot of help. If you didn't have a chance to participate why don't you get in touch with Vo-Tec and have them put your name down for next year.

The updating of the Hancock County Map is in the process of being sent to this office for proofing before it will be printed. All of you that took advertisements are aware of the reason we have been delayed. The executive committee met with the vice-president of Impact Map Company and he said a September 1 delivery date is scheduled. We appreciate your patience for waiting and feel that we will receive a first-class map. If you have any questions please call the office.

A sign at the foot of the Bay St. Louis Bridge will be placed to indicate the downtown Bay St. Louis.

business district. The board of directors would like to thank Mayor Larry Bennett for his help in this project.

Farmers Market - According to L. J. Breaux, agricultural chairman, the Farmer's Market is open again on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Located at the Hancock County Fairgrounds, the farmers bring all types of fresh vegetables and sell them from 7 a.m. until they are sold out. To get the best buys you should try to go early.

Gasoline shortage - Everyone is concerned about the gasoline shortage and how it will affect the tourism industry. So far businesses seem to be doing well - motels, restaurants, etc., according to the quarterly report put out on the tourist industry. Milford Lady, tourism chairman, said at the May meeting he was hopeful that Hancock County would not be affected very much due to our closeness in location to New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Jackson, etc.

New Members - President Dick Thomas welcomes the following new 1979 members: Little Caesars Restaurant; Key Properties; Animal City; Brinderson Corporation; Bergeron Marine, Inc.; Waveland's Lil Shop; and Countryside Collectables.

Congratulations to Miss Bay St. Louis Cathy Bosley. Cathy will represent Bay St. Louis in the Miss Hospitality Pageant to be held at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum July 25-28.

Chamber Briefs: Waveland's Miss Hospitality Pageant will be held June 13 in the American Legion Hall on Coleman Avenue.

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

THE O.C.S. COMMITTEE
By REP. TRENT LOTT
5th District, Mississippi

Disputes between various departments of the federal government are pretty much commonplace and, sometimes, a congressional committee with clear-cut oversight can help to bridge the gap. That's part of the work of the Select House Committee on the Outer Continental Shelf.

We have reason to believe that there is a vast potential for as yet undiscovered oil and gas resources offshore in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the Gulf of Mexico. Finding those resources and producing them to help solve our nation's energy problems is a matter of vital interest.

The role of the select committee primarily is to see that legislation approved during the last Congress is carried out. I serve on the panel and we are making efforts to provide the means for developing offshore oil and gas, while taking into consideration every environmental concern.

But back to the dispute between those two departments. The Department of Energy and the Department of the Interior are jointly charged with some responsibilities in the O.C.S. law. So far, the Interior Department has been moving very slowly to implement its portion of the law.

For example, making an estimate of production goals from the O.C.S. was the task of the Energy Department, and its report was to be used for the establishment of a five-year leasing schedule by the Interior Department. Yet, the Interior Department ignored the report.

Initial committee hearings have brought to light some turf battles between Energy and Interior over which department will write the rules for what portions of the law. I had hoped that these two departments would follow the example set when Congress created the select committee, taking jurisdiction from nine standing committees of the House, and placing cooperative responsibility into a central body.

Now, President Carter has become the third successive president to call for acceleration of lease sales in the areas off the Coasts. He urged that some 14.5 million acres be under lease by 1981, so that we can get to the business of finding energy.

For some seven years, Congress has been grappling with plans for our energy future. About 17 percent of all domestic oil and gas now comes from the continental shelf, and prospects are that the shelf will increase in energy importance between now and the 1990s.

Overseeing a wide variety of regulations (about 32 sets in all) will be a challenging task for the select committee. But it must be done if this country is ever to reach energy self-sufficiency.

Emergency responders learn CPR techniques

Some 22 Hancock County residents, including local policemen and firemen, recently participated in a cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course.

The course consisted of two four-hour sessions conducted during the latter part of May. Instructors were Ann E. Peneguy of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department and Chief Ed Friloux of Diamondhead Fire Department and Capt. Michael Willumits of the Bay Fire Department.

"The course is not required for firemen or policemen, but they take CPR to prepare themselves for emergency situations," Peneguy explained. An "Anatomic Anne," a facsimile of the upper torso, on loan from the Hancock County Red Cross was used to exhibit functions of the heart and lungs in coordination with the course.

Participating in the life-saving course were James A. Varnell, Sister Pat Farve, Deborah Cranner, Harris Boudreaux, Charles Jackson, Ronald Garcia, Becky Weston, Horation Weston, Tommy Godwin Jr., Charles A. Breath III, G. Maurice, Mike Hobby, Larry Ladner, Alton Benoit, Albert Blehl, Mary Blehl, Alvin Favre, Williams, Frank Hess, Donald Ronald Garcia Jr., Douglas Holtzclaw, and Arthur Farve.

WHAT ABOUT TRIM?

The proper trim on our beef is important at A&P's Butcher Shop because we don't want you to pay, or even think you're paying one penny extra for unnecessary bone and fat. It's a precise business. We have to trim the beef so the extra bone and fat is taken off before the retail cut is weighed, packaged and priced by weight. Yet we have to leave on just enough fat cover for full flavor. At A&P we trim off all fat in excess of 1/4 inch.

PRECISE TRIM—LOOK FOR IT NEXT TIME YOU VISIT THE BUTCHER SHOP.

LIBRARY DONATION-Dr. Paul Pursley presents City-County Library Board President Fran Trombley with a sculpture in memory of his son, William "Bill" Pursley, who was the victim of a brain tumor in 1978. The Indian bust was created by Peter Toth from a piece of wood 1,800-years old found in Hancock County. Pursley called the work of art "a unique and unusual bust made by a unique and unusual man." Toth is the sculptor who designed and created a large Indian bust at the foot of the US-90 Ocean Springs drawbridge to commemorate American Indians and protest their treatment by the white man. Spring planting statistics to be available June 28

Earlier this year farmers indicated plans to cut back on feed grain acreage and increase land going into soybeans.

Ranchers reported another decline in the Nation's cattle herd.

Just how many acres actually went into production this season and how many livestock are on hand?

A nationwide survey in late May and early June will develop estimates to guide farmers in their future marketing, and inform commodity buyers, traders, and policymakers on what to expect from agriculture this year.

As of April 1 farmers planned to boost acreages going for soybeans, durum wheat, and cotton while cutting back on corn, sorghum, oats and barley.

A cattle count at the start of 1979 showed the fourth consecutive annual drop in the current cattle cycle.

Hog numbers are the largest since the early 70's with spring and summer farrowing intentions indicating continued expansion.

Dick Knight of the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service cites the importance of producer cooperation in developing reliable current indications of acreages and livestock.

Representatives from his staff will interview a cross-section of farmers and mail questionnaires to others to gather data for the estimates. Similar surveys will be carried on in all States.

Final national and State estimates will be published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Board. A report on 1979 spring planted acres will be available June 28, followed by July 11 with estimates of yield and production for major crops.

Estimates of hog and pig numbers will be reported June 21, and cattle numbers on July 25.

MISSISSIPPI WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT

Mississippi farmers can look for drier weather in June, according to the National Weather Service outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Near normal temperatures and below median rainfall are predicted.

May rainfall was heavy, and most farms received more than five inches.

June will probably bring less than three inches, say agrometeorologists at the Environmental Studies Service Center in Stoneville, who prepare the forecasts. Afternoon temperatures will reach 90 degrees or higher.

Mississippi soils are saturated. Only about a third of the soybeans and 85 percent of the rice are planted.

Drier weather will favor crop growth and late seeding of rice and soybeans.

A long, warm dry spell may put stress on crops where root development was slowed by damp weather.

Cattlemen will be busy harvesting hay, but they should check forecasts to minimize risks of rain damage.

Summer grass growth may slow by the end of June. Most wheat will be combined in the next four weeks, say agrometeorologists.

Poultry producers can expect the first heat stress of the season this month.

Ventilating equipment should be in good repair. Producers who receive chicks in June should be aware that there is a 60 percent chance this summer will be warmer than normal.

LIMITING FEDERAL SPENDING

Farmers of this state and nation are joining in a national movement to curb deficit spending in this fiscally inflation over three percent, beleaguered nation as the best means of halting runaway inflation.

Allan B. Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has called for a Constitutional amendment to restrict the spending authority of the federal government to a realistic percentage of the gross national product. His move is the result of farmers' resolutions from across the land adopted at the American Farm Bureau Federation's annual meeting, early this year in Miami, Florida.

The farmer delegates said, "Both the Congress and the executive Branch must accept major responsibility for bringing inflation to a halt. Deficit spending by the federal government and programs and policies which increase the supply of money and credit faster than production are basic causes of inflation. We believe that an amendment to the U.S. Constitution should be adopted to require that the Congress operate on a balanced budget each year, without deficit financing or increased taxes, and that only in extreme emergencies could this requirement be waived with the concurrence of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and the Executive Branch of government."

Going further, the delegates asked that no salary increase be granted to any elected federal official until the federal budget is balanced, including automatic pay raises for federal employees.

The Farm Bureau delegates favor measures to "limit federal spending" rather than to "balance the federal budget" because the federal budget can be balanced by raising taxes as an alternate to limiting federal spending.

Proponents of an amendment linking federal spending to the growth of the gross national product are now forming a bipartisan coalition headed by Senators H. John Heinz (R-Pa.) and Richard Stone (D-Fla.) to lead the drive in Congress.

The conservatives recall that spending limit proposals have been heard
